KENNER CODE INSPECTORS UPGRADED UNIFORMS RECENTLY

Starting in late September, 2010, code enforcement inspectors for the City of Kenner began phasing out the old uniforms they have worn for years and began wearing new uniforms.

The most striking change is the color and type of shirt – from blue oxford to green polo – and a new badge worn at the waist instead of on the chest above the heart

Officials at Kenner’s Department of Inspection and Code Enforcement said the new uniforms and badges are another step in the ongoing evolution of the department and its efforts to offer improved services to the public.

The new uniform and badge colors (green and gold) reflect the official colors of the City of Kenner, and will help distinguish code enforcement officers from Kenner’s other security professional positions, like police officers.
